

Clark County Law Library

Internet Legal Research

Many State and Federal sources of law may be found online. State sources include laws and State Supreme Court cases, City Codes, and County Codes. Federal Government sources include Courts, laws, codes, and regulations.

Legal forms, manuals, and other helpful information are also available online. The Clark County Law Library provides public computers with Internet access, databases, and legal research links through our webpages at www.ClarkCountyNV.gov/LawLibrary.

When researching legal issues on the Internet it is important to consider the source and whether information was written by trustworthy author(s).

When using a word or phrase to search, the computer may look for exact matches. Legal dictionaries and other print materials can be used to find key words to broaden your search.

The number of Internet sites is growing rapidly and sites are constantly changing. Addresses and site content can change frequently. A few useful sites are listed below:
